Alcoholic Beverage Control Authority

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Authority (abbreviated ABCA or ABC) is an agency of the Government of the Australian Capital Territory. It is responsible for administering the liquor laws of the ACT including the sale of alcohol, liquor licensing, liquor store sales, and liquor advertising. The agency is Australia's most restrictive alcohol regulatory body, and as such, many aspects of the sale of alcohol in the ACT are regulated more stringently than in other states and territories. The agency also administers the ACT road transport scheme.

History

Prior to the establishment of the ABCA, the ACT government was responsible for the "control, sale and licensing" of alcohol in the ACT. In January 1980, as a result of an executive decision, the ACT Liquor Commission became the ACT Excise and Liquor Authority. In April 1980, the ACT Government and the Commonwealth Treasury signed a "Memorandum of Understanding" to set up a new agency, the Alcoholic Beverages Control Authority. In 1981, the ACT abolished the duty on imported spirits and bottled beer and reduced the duty on other alcoholic beverages. This followed the federal prohibition of importation of alcohol into the ACT. The Common Law Liquor Act 1973 provided that excise duty collected should be "paid into a general revenue fund", and the ACT Government asserts that "the funds so created were intended to be spent and used as a revenue measure to support the education and welfare needs of the people of the ACT". The ACT abolished the limit on the number of drinks that could be sold by any one licensee in a financial year, and the ABS (previously called the Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics) was given the authority to collect and disseminate data about the consumption of alcohol in the ACT. In 1984, the ACT Government decided that the ABCA should be responsible for licensing and regulating restaurants, hotels and inns, takeaway liquor stores and licensed barristers in the ACT. The ACT Government set up a "Gross Receipts Tax" of 10% on all liquor sold in the territory. This tax was largely circumvented by transactions taking place outside the ACT, and many licensed premises were found to be selling alcohol for less than the GST. In 1995 the ACT Government transferred control of the territory's road freight licensing scheme from the former ACT Legislative Assembly to the ABCA.
